Eadier Solutions - The new era of e-business

London, Ontario - Eadier Solutions, “Where Anything’s Possible,” is a marketing and communications company, which provides products, services, and solutions to North American business. Eadier Solutions was just involved in their business website launch. Jim Eadie, President of Eadier Solutions states- “ Our business model towards our clients has always linked to the internet being a powerful tool in increasing your sales and awareness, we have just started to work with the small-medium sized business and they are starting to see their bottom line improve, I thought its about time that we utilize the power of the internet to our benefit.”

“No matter what the product or the industry, we’ll find a way to get the results your looking for; we thrive on challenges,” states Jim Eadie, President of Eadier Solutions. The company specifically focuses on marketing and public relations but also specializes in: web page design, graphic design, media buying and selling (advertising), business consulting, and product development.

One of Eadier Solutions major clients, Farms.com Ltd. is excited about the Web site launch. Joe Dales, Sr. Vice President of Farms.com states, “Eadier Solutions has a major part in prospecting, developing, and coordinating our entire media selling division for the Farms.com website. The results have been impressive and I’m excited about the Eadier portal.” And Carol Mitchell, education director for the International Society of Yoga Education, is also enthused about the news, “Eadier Solutions handles all aspects of our corporate communications and public relations. The launch of this Web site should show other suitors how capable they are in this line of work.”

The Eadier Solutions Web site, www.eadiersolutions.com, provides company information, but will expand into a portal providing unique information and content for consumers in London and throughout the world; so stay tuned!
